- In one of the presentations you mentioned education on energy efficiency measures. Within a Horizon 2020 project (ECO2) we have developed an online tool that helps inform households about EE and responsible energy consumption at home. An open access platform called Act4Eco and available here: https://act4eco.eu/ It could be used to educate elderly people and vulnerable groups as well, about how to save energy and produce their own energy at home by employing RES. As part of the ECO2 project we are planning national and EU-level policy seminars with stakeholders to discuss the access to and existence of energy efficiency measures/policies and energy poverty will be one of the pillars discussed.

- I just wanted to share the link to website of H2020 project EmpowerMed that tackles energy poverty in the Mediterranean with focus on summer energy poverty, women and health: https://www.empowermed.eu/
