Research & Innovation

Low-carbon economy

SME Competitiveness

Environment & resource efficiency

✓ Proven successful in reaching its objectives, tangible results

✓ Good practice: With potential for learning and inspiration in other regions

WHY YOU SHOULD SUBMIT YOUR GP?

Great communication opportunity

- You will be able to display the GPs identified within your project on your website.
- It will showcase and give visibility to the content of your cooperation

You can be a source of inspiration and learning for policymakers all over Europe

- Your GP will be part of a collection of 'expert-validated' good practices database. By contributing to the Policy Learning Platform GP database you can inspire others and help European regions to improve their policies

WHY SHOULD YOU SUBMIT YOUR GP?

Progress reporting support

- Part of your reporting tasks is to submit the good practices identified in your project
- The number and the overall quality of the good practices submitted through the web tool will be also validated by the policy officers in order to justify the value reported under the related indicator (section C.6.2 of the progress report - 'number of good practices identified').
- Quality is more important than quantity. You do not have to submit all the practices identified within your project, but instead concentrate on those that were considered of real added-value by the partnership

WHO CAN SUBMIT A GP?

2. Project partners that have identified good practices during their exchange of experience activities, can submit those they deem the best in the topic they work on.

3. Anyone with a good practice which fits the programme definition.

WHO CAN SUBMIT A GP?

- Important: ideally the GP owner should fill in the form: pass the info to your partnership
- Author personal and organisational profile in the Interreg Europe community will be linked to it.

- If your organisation is not the one in charge of the GP, you can indicate the relevant organisation in the dedicated section of the form
