The Irish Refugee Council provide services and support for people seeking protection and people recognised as refugees in Ireland and advocate for humane and dignified protection procedures and responses to people fleeing persecution.

- Provide holistic integration supports from the day a person arrives in Ireland
- Support and protect children and young people in the protection process
- Raise public and political awareness and advocacy
- Evidence based research and policy
- Pilot best practice models
- Build capacity among key actors to bring about positive changes in practice and policy

'A Place to Call Home'

• Problem Addressed:

- Having access to adequate and affordable housing is often considered a basic need (Russell et al., 2021), as well as an important component of integration (Penninx and Garcés-Mascareñas, 2016).
- Adequate housing allows migrants to work, to be in education and to participate in society more broadly. Moreover, in many societies, homeownership is considered as a marker of social and economic success. However, due to a myriad of factors, migrants may face inequalities in housing tenure and affordability in Ireland.
- Migrants may, for example, be younger, have different housing preferences because they do not intend to stay in Ireland long-term or have a lower income from work, limiting their ability to buy a home. In addition, they may be limited by the characteristics of the property market, the banking sector and credit regulations of the host country, as well as facing discrimination in the rental housing market (Gusciute et al., 2022).
- Set against a backdrop of the current Irish housing market, which is characterised by limited availability and affordability, the challenges faced by some migrant groups may be especially large (McGinnity et al., 2022; Russell et al., 2021).

'A Place to Call Home'

- Potential for Learning or Transfer:

- One of the reasons that the 'A Place to Call Home' programme have been successful and could be transferred is that the programme empowers refugees and migrants to take ownership of their needs, through understanding the current housing situation in Ireland, showcasing how to complete and prepare the relevant housing application forms and supporting documentation including reference letters, understanding how the HAP (housing assistance payment) works and finally how to submitting your application to relevant local authorities and in Ireland. Furthermore, the Irish Refugee Council has developed strong connections through their Housing Programme with organisations such as the United Dioceses of Dublin and Glendalough congregations, as well as members of the public donating properties for those seeking refuge in Ireland. There are great opportunities for sharing this critical process of building relationships with key supports who can help the refugee clients of IRC.

- Challenges Encountered:

- Continuous funding of programmes is a constant challenge for the Irish Refugee Council.
- Constraints on future planning because of a lack of long-term security of tenure, non-standardised leases, utilization of different rental mechanisms to support clients is problematic (Rent supplement vs HAP vs private means).
- Working with partners who provide access to accommodation needs to be very sensitively handled, and also to ensure that there are no problems with the tenants when they move in and respect the facilities.
